Masterminding a Personal Dream World Near New York

Photography by: George E. Peirce/Studio 84

WHEN THE TIME CAME for the renowned international designer to create his personal dream house, he had already established his priorities. First, the house was to be away from the city, but not too far: The wooded, two-acre site in Saddle River was perfect, just over half an hour from metropolitan New York City.

Second, the house "should make an enduring impression." This it does in every detail. Fourteen thousand square feet of interiors are magnificently proportioned, with ceilings ranging from nine to twelve feet high. Huge windows take in breathtaking views—most notably in the master suite's greenhouse solarium.

From the five extravagant entertainment centers to handsome and intimate theater, the two self contained guest wings to the free-form lagoon pool, every aspect of the estate reflects an extraordinary aesthetic sensibility.
